

Structure du programme et liste des cours

Niveau Intermediate

(Cheminement: 1)

A moins d'indication contraire, un cours comporte trois (3) crédits

Cours optionnels (30 crédits)

L'étudiant doit suivre les sept cours obligatoires suivants (vingt et un crédits) :

ANG1015 - English in the Work Place

To provide students with the oral skills they need to function in a work environment.

Intensive practice of English in a professional setting. Correction of mistakes. Practical review of grammar with an emphasis on interference errors. Written exercises. Enhancement of vocabulary. Job interviews. Telephone calls. Laboratory work as needed.

ANG1019 - Everyday English I

To enable students to use English in everyday situations.

Intensive practice of oral English in a communicative context. Building of self-confidence in English. Correction of mistakes. Practical review of grammar with an emphasis on verbs. Written exercises. Enhancement of vocabulary. Practice of pronunciation. Sketches.

ANG1029 - Oral Communication

Improve oral proficiency in English. Instil confidence in students regarding their ability to express themselves in correct English.

Active class discussions on a variety of topics and specific themes. Oral presentations (book reports, film reviews, etc.) and debates. Oral simulation of real life professional situations. The above-mentioned activities will be reinforced through written assignments.

ANG1067 - Practical Grammar I

Review and strengthen students' knowledge of basic English grammar rules which are a source of problems for francophone students. The course will cover terminology pertaining to various aspects of grammar. Topics to be covered will include the following: nouns, adjectives, adverbs, verbs and auxiliaries, articles, pronouns and conjunctions. Emphasis will be placed on practical written and oral exercises.

ANG1077 - Advanced English Grammar

Review and consolidation of grammatical structures in context using a discourse-based approach to improve understanding and use of English.

Topics covered will include : tense and mood, sequence of tenses, relative clauses and adjective phrases, gerunds and infinitives, articles and other determiners, adverb clauses and phrases, as well as comprehension and writing assignments.

ANG1080 - Listening

This course aims to improve listening skills by providing extensive practice in a wide range of contexts, including both general and more academic listening. Students will engage with a variety of authentic and adapted recordings in order to get accustomed to natural spoken English. Students will learn to listen strategically and effectively; they will also be supplied with background information and engage in pre- and post listening activities. Where appropriate, pronunciation and grammar will be addressed. At the end of the course, students will be better able to engage in independent listening involving registers of English ranging from colloquial to academic.

ANG1081 - Reading

This course aims to improve reading skills by providing extensive practice in a range of text types, including both fiction and non-fiction. Students will engage with a variety of authentic texts (short stories, news articles, journal pieces) in order to get accustomed to written English of different styles and levels of formality. Students will learn to read strategically and effectively; they will also be supplied with background information and engage in pre- and post reading activities. Where appropriate, vocabulary, grammar, spelling, and punctuation will be addressed. At the end of the course, students will be better able to engage in independent reading for information and pleasure.

Pour compléter sa formation, l'étudiant choisit deux à trois cours parmi la liste des cours suivants (6 à 9 crédits) :

ANG1017 - English for Academic and Professional Purposes

To enable students to participate in discussions and to produce written expository prose texts pertaining to their field of academic and professional interests.

Intensive practice of oral English in specialized fields. Study and production of different kinds of essays. Oral presentation and professional exchanges. Documenting and delivering papers. This course will be adapted to specific students' needs (i.e. Science, Health sciences, Computer Science...).

ANG1020 - Written English for Business

To enable students to write formal letters, business correspondence and reports.

Study and production of different types of business letters : i.e. request, information, order, acknowledgement, claim, adjustment and credit letters.

Production of a C.V. and a covering letter. Study and production of memos.

ANG1045 - Everyday English II

To enable students to use oral English in most situations.

Intensive practice of oral English in a communicative context. Development and improvement of speech strategies and skills. Correction of mistakes.

Practical review of grammar with an emphasis on prepositions and conjunctions. Written exercises. Enhancement of vocabulary. Oral presentations.

ANG1078 - Writing for Language Practitioners

To improve written English proficiency by exploring writing strategies and enhancing skills in several areas: grammar and writing in context, critical reading, writing and rewriting.

This course will involve reading, analysis and production of various types of texts. It will entail examination of writing strategies, stylistic features and text content, error analysis as well as summarizing, paraphrasing and text revision.

Pour compléter sa formation, l'étudiant choisit de zéro à un cours parmi la liste des cours suivants (0 à 3 crédits) :

ANG1042 - Language and Style

To introduce students to various stylistic and rhetorical devices used in different communicative situations.

Focus on both process and product in approaching text comprehension and production. Study of a variety of discourses and language registers, both oral and written, formal and informal used for different purposes (interviews, casual texts, specialized texts, editorials, literary excerpts, etc).

Related exercises to enable students to present their ideas cogently and coherently.

LNG1100 - Grammaire et stylistique différentielles

Sensibiliser l'étudiant aux différences et aux ressemblances entre l'anglais et le français, lui faire résoudre des difficultés de traduction qui résultent du non-parallélisme des deux systèmes linguistiques, lui permettre d'améliorer sa capacité de traduction.

Étude comparée des caractéristiques grammaticales et stylistiques de l'anglais et du français permettant d'identifier, afin de les éviter, les confusions qui résultent des divergences entre les deux langues. Explications théoriques et exercices d'application portant sur divers aspects de la langue : aspects lexicaux, grammaticaux et stylistiques.

Cours optionnels (30 crédits)

Pour compléter sa formation, l'étudiant choisit deux à trois cours parmi la liste des cours suivants (6 à 9 crédits) :

L'étudiant doit suivre les sept cours obligatoires suivants (vingt et un crédits) :

ANG1015 - English in the Work Place

To provide students with the oral skills they need to function in a work environment.

Intensive practice of English in a professional setting. Correction of mistakes. Practical review of grammar with an emphasis on interference errors. Written exercises. Enhancement of vocabulary. Job interviews. Telephone calls. Laboratory work as needed.

ANG1019 - Everyday English I

To enable students to use English in everyday situations.

Intensive practice of oral English in a communicative context. Building of self-confidence in English. Correction of mistakes. Practical review of grammar with an emphasis on verbs. Written exercises. Enhancement of vocabulary. Practice of pronunciation. Sketches.

ANG1029 - Oral Communication

Improve oral proficiency in English. Instil confidence in students regarding their ability to express themselves in correct English.

Active class discussions on a variety of topics and specific themes. Oral presentations (book reports, film reviews, etc.) and debates. Oral simulation of real life professional situations. The above-mentioned activities will be reinforced through written assignments.

ANG1067 - Practical Grammar I

Review and strengthen students' knowledge of basic English grammar rules which are a source of problems for francophone students. The course will cover terminology pertaining to various aspects of grammar. Topics to be covered will include the following: nouns, adjectives, adverbs, verbs and auxiliaries, articles, pronouns and conjunctions. Emphasis will be placed on practical written and oral exercises.

ANG1077 - Advanced English Grammar

Review and consolidation of grammatical structures in context using a discourse-based approach to improve understanding and use of English.

Topics covered will include : tense and mood, sequence of tenses, relative clauses and adjective phrases, gerunds and infinitives, articles and other determiners, adverb clauses and phrases, as well as comprehension and writing assignments.

ANG1080 - Listening

This course aims to improve listening skills by providing extensive practice in a wide range of contexts, including both general and more academic listening. Students will engage with a variety of authentic and adapted recordings in order to get accustomed to natural spoken English. Students will learn to listen strategically and effectively; they will also be supplied with background information and engage in pre- and post listening activities. Where appropriate, pronunciation and grammar will be addressed. At the end of the course, students will be better able to engage in independent listening involving registers of English ranging from colloquial to academic.

ANG1081 - Reading

This course aims to improve reading skills by providing extensive practice in a range of text types, including both fiction and non-fiction. Students will engage with a variety of authentic texts (short stories, news articles, journal pieces) in order to get accustomed to written English of different styles and levels of formality. Students will learn to read strategically and effectively; they will also be supplied with background information and engage in pre- and post reading activities. Where appropriate, vocabulary, grammar, spelling, and punctuation will be addressed. At the end of the course, students will be better able to engage in independent reading for information and pleasure.

Pour compléter sa formation, l'étudiant choisit deux à trois cours parmi la liste des cours suivants (6 à 9 crédits) :

ANG1017 - English for Academic and Professional Purposes

To enable students to participate in discussions and to produce written expository prose texts pertaining to their field of academic and professional interests.

Intensive practice of oral English in specialized fields. Study and production of different kinds of essays. Oral presentation and professional exchanges. Documenting and delivering papers. This course will be adapted to specific students' needs (i.e. Science, Health sciences, Computer Science...).

ANG1020 - Written English for Business

To enable students to write formal letters, business correspondence and reports.

Study and production of different types of business letters : i.e. request, information, order, acknowledgement, claim, adjustment and credit letters. Production of a C.V. and a covering letter. Study and production of memos.

ANG1045 - Everyday English II

To enable students to use oral English in most situations.

Intensive practice of oral English in a communicative context. Development and improvement of speech strategies and skills. Correction of mistakes. Practical review of grammar with an emphasis on prepositions and conjunctions. Written exercises. Enhancement of vocabulary. Oral presentations.

ANG1078 - Writing for Language Practitioners

To improve written English proficiency by exploring writing strategies and enhancing skills in several areas: grammar and writing in context, critical reading, writing and rewriting.

This course will involve reading, analysis and production of various types of texts. It will entail examination of writing strategies, stylistic features and text content, error analysis as well as summarizing, paraphrasing and text revision.

Pour compléter sa formation, l'étudiant choisit de zéro à un cours parmi la liste des cours suivants (0 à 3 crédits) :

ANG1042 - Language and Style

To introduce students to various stylistic and rhetorical devices used in different communicative situations.

Focus on both process and product in approaching text comprehension and production. Study of a variety of discourses and language registers, both oral and written, formal and informal used for different purposes (interviews, casual texts, specialized texts, editorials, literary excerpts, etc). Related exercises to enable students to present their ideas cogently and coherently.

LNG1100 - Grammaire et stylistique différentielles

Sensibiliser l'étudiant aux différences et aux ressemblances entre l'anglais et le français, lui faire résoudre des difficultés de traduction qui résultent du non-parallélisme des deux systèmes linguistiques, lui permettre d'améliorer sa capacité de traduction.

Étude comparée des caractéristiques grammaticales et stylistiques de l'anglais et du français permettant d'identifier, afin de les éviter, les confusions qui résultent des divergences entre les deux langues. Explications théoriques et exercices d'application portant sur divers aspects de la langue : aspects lexicaux, grammaticaux et stylistiques.

Cours optionnels (30 crédits)

Pour compléter sa formation, l'étudiant choisit de zéro à un cours parmi la liste des cours suivants (0 à 3 crédits) :

L'étudiant doit suivre les sept cours obligatoires suivants (vingt et un crédits) :

ANG1015 - English in the Work Place

To provide students with the oral skills they need to function in a work environment.

Intensive practice of English in a professional setting. Correction of mistakes. Practical review of grammar with an emphasis on interference errors. Written exercises. Enhancement of vocabulary. Job interviews. Telephone calls. Laboratory work as needed.

ANG1019 - Everyday English I

To enable students to use English in everyday situations.

Intensive practice of oral English in a communicative context. Building of self-confidence in English. Correction of mistakes. Practical review of grammar with an emphasis on verbs. Written exercises. Enhancement of vocabulary. Practice of pronunciation. Sketches.

ANG1029 - Oral Communication

Improve oral proficiency in English. Instil confidence in students regarding their ability to express themselves in correct English.

Active class discussions on a variety of topics and specific themes. Oral presentations (book reports, film reviews, etc.) and debates. Oral simulation of real life professional situations. The above-mentioned activities will be reinforced through written assignments.

ANG1067 - Practical Grammar I

Review and strengthen students' knowledge of basic English grammar rules which are a source of problems for francophone students. The course will cover terminology pertaining to various aspects of grammar. Topics to be covered will include the following: nouns, adjectives, adverbs, verbs and auxiliaries, articles, pronouns and conjunctions. Emphasis will be placed on practical written and oral exercises.

ANG1077 - Advanced English Grammar

Review and consolidation of grammatical structures in context using a discourse-based approach to improve understanding and use of English.

Topics covered will include : tense and mood, sequence of tenses, relative clauses and adjective phrases, gerunds and infinitives, articles and other determiners, adverb clauses and phrases, as well as comprehension and writing assignments.

ANG1080 - Listening

This course aims to improve listening skills by providing extensive practice in a wide range of contexts, including both general and more academic listening. Students will engage with a variety of authentic and adapted recordings in order to get accustomed to natural spoken English. Students will learn to listen strategically and effectively; they will also be supplied with background information and engage in pre- and post listening activities. Where appropriate, pronunciation and grammar will be addressed. At the end of the course, students will be better able to engage in independent listening involving registers of English ranging from colloquial to academic.

ANG1081 - Reading

This course aims to improve reading skills by providing extensive practice in a range of text types, including both fiction and non-fiction. Students will engage with a variety of authentic texts (short stories, news articles, journal pieces) in order to get accustomed to written English of different styles and levels of formality. Students will learn to read strategically and effectively; they will also be supplied with background information and engage in pre- and post reading activities. Where appropriate, vocabulary, grammar, spelling, and punctuation will be addressed. At the end of the course, students will be better able to engage in independent reading for information and pleasure.

Pour compléter sa formation, l'étudiant choisit deux à trois cours parmi la liste des cours suivants (6 à 9 crédits) :

ANG1017 - English for Academic and Professional Purposes

To enable students to participate in discussions and to produce written expository prose texts pertaining to their field of academic and professional interests.

Intensive practice of oral English in specialized fields. Study and production of different kinds of essays. Oral presentation and professional exchanges. Documenting and delivering papers. This course will be adapted to specific students' needs (i.e. Science, Health sciences, Computer Science...).

ANG1020 - Written English for Business

To enable students to write formal letters, business correspondence and reports.

Study and production of different types of business letters : i.e. request, information, order, acknowledgement, claim, adjustment and credit letters. Production of a C.V. and a covering letter. Study and production of memos.

ANG1045 - Everyday English II

To enable students to use oral English in most situations.

Intensive practice of oral English in a communicative context. Development and improvement of speech strategies and skills. Correction of mistakes. Practical review of grammar with an emphasis on prepositions and conjunctions. Written exercises. Enhancement of vocabulary. Oral presentations.

ANG1078 - Writing for Language Practitioners

To improve written English proficiency by exploring writing strategies and enhancing skills in several areas: grammar and writing in context, critical reading, writing and rewriting.

This course will involve reading, analysis and production of various types of texts. It will entail examination of writing strategies, stylistic features and text content, error analysis as well as summarizing, paraphrasing and text revision.

Pour compléter sa formation, l'étudiant choisit de zéro à un cours parmi la liste des cours suivants (0 à 3 crédits) :

ANG1042 - Language and Style

To introduce students to various stylistic and rhetorical devices used in different communicative situations.

Focus on both process and product in approaching text comprehension and production. Study of a variety of discourses and language registers, both oral and written, formal and informal used for different purposes (interviews, casual texts, specialized texts, editorials, literary excerpts, etc). Related exercises to enable students to present their ideas cogently and coherently.

LNG1100 - Grammaire et stylistique différentielles

Sensibiliser l'étudiant aux différences et aux ressemblances entre l'anglais et le français, lui faire résoudre des difficultés de traduction qui résultent du non-parallélisme des deux systèmes linguistiques, lui permettre d'améliorer sa capacité de traduction.

Étude comparée des caractéristiques grammaticales et stylistiques de l'anglais et du français permettant d'identifier, afin de les éviter, les confusions qui résultent des divergences entre les deux langues. Explications théoriques et exercices d'application portant sur divers aspects de la langue : aspects lexicaux, grammaticaux et stylistiques.